About CEENELS

The Central and European Network of Legal Scholars (CEENELS) – an informal network of academic lawyers of all legal sub-disciplines from Central and Eastern Europe (CEE) – was established in April 2015 with the aim of fostering networking and cooperation within our region and promoting the discourse of CEE legal identity, underscoring our legal-cultural bonds based on a common past, common juridico-political mentality and common present predicament. On a practical level, CEENELS aims at strengthening of intellectual and organisational bonds between CEE legal scholars and law faculties, promoting the emergence of joint research projects involving CEE researchers, fostering the elaboration of unique CEE research methodologies, allowing for the development of a distinct school of jurisprudence, and building up a stock of critical legal knowledge concerning our region. CEENELS organises its annual conferences, assumes patronage over conferences, workshops and seminars, enables the exchange of information on research project opportunities with view to creating joint research teams involving scholars from CEE countries and works towards developing a digital library of open-access publications on the legal life of the region.
